A county jury found Hallman guilty of passing a bad check for $688 to F. M. Anderson, York Springs R. 1, following a trial during the early part of this week. He is to repay the sum in regular payments.

Shareholders Back Avery's
Defiance Of WLB And FDR

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—Comparative calm prevailed today in the stormy battle between the federal government and Montgomery Ward and company as principals prepared for ensuing court skirmishes in the fight over the government's seizure of the big mail order house.

While the Chicago plants remained under supervision of government officials and federal troops continued their detail at the plant, the company's board chairman, Sewell L. Avery, held a vote of "full confidence" from shareholders.

But the 69-year-old Avery, by court order, was restrained from taking over his $100,000 a year office, despite approval of shareholders of his policies and his re-election as chief executive officer.

Avery's forcible ejection from his office Thursday climaxed his steadfast refusal to comply to orders from

138 COUNTIANS
DONATE BLOOD
TO SAVE LIVES

One hundred and thirty-eight Adams county residents gave a pint of blood apiece Friday afternoon at the Red Cross Blood Donor unit at Christ Lutheran church.

The 138 pints brought to 1,808 the number of pints given by countians since the establishment of the blood donor unit here last year. A total of 1,242 pints were given during 1943 and 566 pints have been given so far this year.

Friday proved the best day yet in regard to rejections with only 14 prospective donors turned down for colds or other slight ailments. Usually at least twice that many rejections are made. The day also marked a fairly low record for absentees with 50 out of the 220 persons asked to give "a pint of blood to save a life" failing to report for their appointment. Last month 75 absentees were recorded.

Run Out of Bottles

Because a case of 22 bottles shipped here to receive the blood given by the donors was unusable due to breakage, eighteen prospective donors had to be asked to return next month, as there were not sufficient bottles to take care of the record number of prospective donors.

Radford H. Lippy, Chambersburg street, blood donor committee chairman, moved to within one pint of being in the "gallon club," made up of persons who have given a gallon of their blood for plasma, by giving his seventh pint, Captain H. V. Girard, who was also scheduled to give his seventh pint Friday, was unable to keep his appointment, having been transferred, effective Friday, to another camp.

Three persons gave for the sixth time. They included Mrs. Edgar W. Weaver, Gettysburg R. 4; County Republican chairman John H. Basehore and Ernest D. Bushman, Arendtsville.

Twenty countians gave for the fifth time: 33 for the fourth time; 24 won their silver medals by giving for a third time; 37 gave for the second time and 20 were first time donors.

Japan Taking
"Beating" On
"Five Fronts"

By J. B. KRUEGER

Associated Press War Editor

Allied reports from all quarters pictured the Japanese today as taking a beating on the five fronts rimming his inflated empire.

The enemy's invasion of India was being chopped to pieces. His offensive in north China was losing its steam. Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell maintained his steady advance in Burma and in the southwest and central Pacific zones it was all take and no give for the Nipponese.

Around Kohima, the Indian city guarding the Assam-Bengal railway supplying Stilwell's troops, Allied forces were reported liquidating enemy strongpoints. Southeast Asia headquarters also said that British and Indian troops were advancing southeast of Kohima, while a superior Allied air arm struck hard in support of ground operations. The general success of the British counteroffensive seemed about to wipe out Japanese hopes of seizing Kohima before the heavy rains come in three weeks.

No Cause For Uneasiness

In response to Associated Press inquiries, southeast Asia headquarters said there was no justification for American uneasiness concerning the invasion of India. It said the Ledo road push was going forward and the Allied strategic schedule was not being delayed.

In China enemy troops were thrown out of Hulao pass with heavy casualties, Chungking reported, and the threat to Loyang in northern Honan was thereby reduced. Two other Nipponese columns were forced to halt and retreat, the Chinese high command announced, and generally the situation was better. Like captured Chenghsien to the east, Loyang is a point on a rail-highway line leading to Chungking, the war-time capital.

Gen. Stilwell's forces took two more villages, putting his Chinese within eight or ten miles of Kamaing, Mogaung valley enemy base. U. S. Bombers and fighters set large fires in Myitkyina, key to reopening the Burma road, which is Stilwell's major objective.

Hollandia Invasion Is Finished

The Hollandia-Aitape invasion was finished. From the new bases in New Guinea Allied planes took off for raids against Sorong on western New Guinea, at Babo to the south, at Wewak's often-hit airdromes, and at Rabaul and Kavieng.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz maintained his aerial offensive with strikes against Guam—taken from the U. S. in the first month of war—and Truk and Ponape in the Caroline islands. The Guam raid, on April 24, was the first by land-based Army and Navy bombers based in the Marshalls.

There was no substantiation of a Berlin report reputedly out of Tokyo that Japanese submarines had torpedoed and damaged two American aircraft carriers at or "east of the Marshalls."

County Students
Present Comedy

The senior class of the East Berlin high school presented a three-act comedy, "Betty Jane from Punkin' Lane," Friday evening at the high school auditorium.

The lead was portrayed by Mary Chubb. Others in the cast include:

Paul Livingston as "Johnny Finch," a country boy; Esther Kline-dine as "Ketchy Finch," his sister; Grace King as "Auntie Bean," the darling of Punkin' Lane; Charles Anderson as "Gordon Gilbert," an artist; Florence Spahr as "Gertie Gilbert," a city girl; Bernice Billett, as "Mrs. Gilbert," a mother; Anna Hoffheins as "Prudence Putter," who has a nose for news; John Barton as "Hank Hardwater," a handy man; Faye L. Krout as the love-lorn "Martha Simmons"; Fred Jacobs as "Squire Simmons," a hard businessman, and Robert Myers as "Harvey Higgins" from Boston.

Mrs. Eleanor Hersherberger of the English department acted as dramatic coach.

LEGION ROLLS
AT NEW PEAK

The 17 posts in the York-Adams and Franklin counties district of the American Legion have a total of 2,643 members, an all-time high for the organization, Stanton D. House, district commander, announced Thursday evening at a district meeting held at Littlestown.

Of the posts in the district, 16 have exceeded their membership of last year and nine are over their quotas set by the state department of the American Legion. More than 95,000 members have been enrolled in the state, Mr. House said, with this number also making an all-time high.

Gettysburg reports 269 members, Biglerville 65, and Littlestown 52. All exceed the number of members for last year, Mr. House said.

The district governor reported on a meeting of the department executive committee held at Harrisburg last Saturday. The next meeting of the district will be held at Scotland Industrial school, May 21.

DAVIS AWARDED
$2,100 VERDICT
IN COURT TRIAL

An Adams county jury that included five women awarded Joseph A. Davis, York Springs, $2,100 after more than two hours deliberation Friday afternoon in his action in trespass brought against the Citizens Oil company of Gettysburg.

Mrs. Gertrude R. Lilly, McSherrystown, was foreman for the jury which returned with the following verdict at 5:30 o'clock Friday evening.

"We the jurors empaneled in the above case find the defendants guilty of negligence and award the plaintiff, Joseph A. Davis, $152 for medical care; $1,448 compensation and $500 for pain and suffering." The jury had retired to consider its decision at 3:20 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Faulty Switch Blamed

Davis was injured February 24, 1941, when a gasoline pump exploded, causing first degree burns about Davis' face and scalp, and first and second degree burns on his face and arms. The right hand was so badly burned it will never be permanently cured and is practically useless, witnesses told the jury Friday.

Davis explained that he was working at the Martin's cabins and service station, three miles west of New Oxford on the Lincoln highway, for the owner of the establishment, his son-in-law, W. Park Steel, when the explosion occurred.

Witnesses told the jury that employees of the Citizens Oil company replaced a motor in the center of three pumps and put in a temporary motor with a temporary switch, earlier on February 24, 1941. The employees told Steel that the switch was safe to use, it was stated. When Davis attempted to pull the switch in order to pump gasoline into a customer's car, the switch gave off a spark igniting the gasoline.

WILL IS FILED

The will of Chalmers C. Kennel, late of Gettysburg, has been entered at the court house. The widow, Daisy M. Kennel, is executrix.

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—Comparative calm prevailed today in the stormy battle between the federal government and Montgomery Ward and company as principals prepared for ensuing court skirmishes in the fight over the government's seizure of the big mail order house.

While the Chicago plants remained under supervision of government officials and federal troops continued their detail at the plant, the company's board chairman, Sewell L. Avery, held a vote of "full confidence" from shareholders.

But the 69-year-old Avery, by court order, was restrained from taking over his $100,000 a year office, despite approval of shareholders of his policies and his re-election as chief executive officer.

Avery's forcible ejection from his office Thursday climaxed his steadfast refusal to comply to orders from the War Labor Board and President Roosevelt to extend an expired contract with a CIO union and his adamant stand against government seizure.

As the stockholders, overflowing a Loop hotel ballroom, adopted a resolution concurring in Avery's position, company counsel in federal court attacked the government seizure of the plant and opened its counter-suit to obtain dissolution of the temporary injunction granted the government Thursday night.

The hearing, before Federal Judge William H. Holly, was continued to Monday and the 74-year-old jurist, who is to retire July 1, indicated a decision would be given Tuesday.

Business at the big mail order house, said federal spokesmen, was "going on as usual," under direction of Wayne C. Taylor, undersecretary of commerce who is federal operating manager.

NO SLACKENING OF WAR EFFORT POSSIBLE YET

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst)
This represents one of the most trying and dangerous moments of the war for our home front, which not only provides Uncle Sam's fighting forces but equips them with all the sinews of war.
It's trying because of the terrible strain of waiting for D-day—of waiting for word that our boys finally have battled their way up the beaches of western Europe and established secure positions.
It's dangerous because we know (perhaps unfortunately) that Hitler's ultimate defeat is certain and that the great invasion represents the coup de grace. That knowledge might easily cause us to slacken in our war effort—something which mustn't happen at this crucial juncture.

Rush Must Go On
Any slowing up means unnecessary protraction of the conflict. It means additional bloodshed and suffering. True, in some few categories we have reached a point of production where there can be tapering off. But the day and night rush to provide the mountains of other material for our men must go on.

Take just one item to illustrate—aviation gasoline. Here are involved not only the production and the various operations necessary to land it on the fighting fronts, but conservation of gas by the home front. The black market operator in gasoline is a traitor to his country.

Pre-Invasion Assault
A year ago the German controlled radio Paris broadcast this: "Britain may soon have to limit her air activity since large-scale raids demand enormous fuel supplies."

Well, the American and British air fleets have raised a lot of hell with Germany since then—but radio Paris was right about the amount of gas required. There has been a steadily increasing hurricane of bombing during the last year until we finally reached the pre-invasion assault which began fifteen days ago. In the first fortnight of this invasion onslaught Allied planes unleashed 65,000 tons of explosives on Europe. In 24 hours of Wednesday and Thursday this week, some 5,000 Allied warplanes unloaded 12,000 tons of bombs.

Huge Gas Requirements
We aren't told the type of all the planes used, but included in the 5,000 were 1,500 heavy American bombers. Do you know how much gasoline the largest machines use? Well, we can't do more than give rough estimates, but some of the big fellows burn 200 gallons an hour at average speed, and since that is 200 miles and upward, their gas consumption is in the neighborhood of a gallon per mile.
The heavies recently have been making round trips of close to 2,000 miles. So if we guess that our 1,500 bombers on Thursday had a round trip of 1,500 miles, they probably consumed a minimum of 8,250,000 gallons of gas.

Thus there is an Amazonian flow of gasoline through the engines of the thousands of airplanes which are tearing into the enemy in preparation for the kill. And it can be said that all the oil and gasoline which our home front has given up to rationing in the war effort has been absorbed by our fighting forces. This shows how necessary conservation has been. It would be a sad day if we ran short of gasoline on the fighting fronts.

NAZI UNEASY OVER "D" DAY FOR INVASION

London, April 29 (AP)—The Germans announced today their anti-invasion command was ready to go into action and simultaneously Nazi occupation authorities in Denmark suspended telephone communication between Copenhagen and Stockholm for the second time in a week.

A Berlin broadcast gave no details concerning the Nazi anti-invasion command, but the Russian news agency Tass quoted Stockholm sources as saying rumors persisted in the German capital that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has replaced 70-year-old Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rundstedt as commander of Hitler's so-called west wall.

Away from a welter of fable and fancy dealing with when, where and the strength with which the Allies will attack, there were these overnight developments:
Ike Asks "More"
Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, making a quick tour of air fields in England from which the Allied pre-invasion blows are being delivered, told flyers that "as much as you have done in the past, more is going to be required of you."

Marshal Petain, in a broadcast from Vichy, urged Frenchmen to "keep a loyal and correct attitude to the occupation troops."

Stockholm advises said not even official calls were being accepted this morning as the German occupying forces in Denmark suspended telephone communications between Stockholm and Copenhagen for the second time in a week.

Danes who reached Sweden after the Nazis isolated Denmark Monday at the beginning of a campaign to stamp out underground activities were quoted by the newspaper Dagens Nyheter as saying 40,000 Danes were armed and ready to help Allied invasion forces.

A Swedish Army strategist fixed the probable strength of British-American assault forces at 200 divisions against a German land force of about 40 divisions.

Eggs and dressed poultry prices showed no change in prices. Butter was 55 cents a pound. Limited supplies of storage apples and potatoes were offered at prices that have not changed in weeks.

Civilians To Get Many Radio Tubes

Washington, April 29 (AP)—Mad because you can't get radio tubes? Here's what the war production board (WPB), which has the say-so over tubes for civilians, says:
There will be 18 million tubes for civilians this year. They're being made at the rate of 4½ million every three months. This includes the critically needed types: 12-SA-7; 12-SQ-7; 50-L-6; 35-Z-5; 35-L-6; 1-H-5; 1-A-4; and No. 80. The total production will meet perhaps only 50 per cent of full civilian requirements.

HORST OPERATED UPON

Harrisburg, April 29—The State Department of Agriculture Thursday announced that Secretary Miles Horst has successfully undergone a major operation at the Lancaster General hospital where he expects to be confined for the next week or 10 days.

FULL MILITARY HONORS MONDAY FOR FRANK KNOX

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Washington, April 29 (AP)—"Well done, Frank Knox."
Those words, spoken by Admiral Ernest J. King, Navy commander in chief, stand today as an epitaph for Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox who died yesterday from recurrent heart attacks.

In the cold, terse language of Naval communications, they are the highest tribute that can be paid a Navy man.

King paid the tribute shortly after word of the Secretary's death yesterday afternoon was flashed by radio to all Naval vessels and shore stations throughout the world by James V. Forrestal, under-secretary, who automatically became acting Secretary of the Navy.

Then King added:
"We dedicate ourselves, one and all, to what would surely have been his last order—carry on."

Military Honors
The Navy will do that. Forrestal directed that, on Monday, when Knox is buried in Arlington National cemetery with full military honors, flags on all ships and at all stations shall fly at half mast. But, he said, "because the nation is at war the firing of salutes and the wearing of mourning badges shall be dispensed with."

The death of the 70-year-old newspaper publisher who became Secretary of the Navy in July, 1940, while German forces were sweeping through Europe, came after six days illness—an illness that was not considered serious until yesterday.

Knox always was a fighting man. He recruited a group of 15 men to accompany him in existing in the Michigan militia for the Spanish-American war. Later he served in the famed "rough riders" under Lt. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and, as a private, took part in the charge of San Juan Hill.

In the first World War he enlisted as a private and advanced to the rank of major at the war's end. He later was commissioned a lieutenant colonel and subsequently promoted to colonel in the Army reserves.

Urged Giant Navy
Recently, recalling his service in those wars, he remarked to friends: "This is the first war I didn't enter as a buck private."
As a newspaperman he carried his fighting ability into the editorial field and was one of the earliest proponents of a giant Navy—a fleet large enough to fight in both the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans.

He saw that aim accomplished as Secretary of the Navy. One of the most widely traveled members of the cabinet, he insisted upon seeing for himself how the war was progressing on all fronts. He went to Pearl Harbor immediately after the Japanese sneak attack on December 7, 1941. He visited North Africa, Italy, England, the South American bases, the South Pacific—where he was on Espiritu Santo during a Japanese bombing raid.

Through it all he remained at heart a newspaperman, and at his twilight-a-week press conferences, delighted in describing his statements as "hot copy" or "merely routine news."

Boom Forrestal For Knox Post

Washington, April 29 (AP)—Strong Congressional backing developed today for the appointment of James V. Forrestal, 52-year-old Undersecretary of the Navy, to the Cabinet post made vacant yesterday by the death of Secretary Frank Knox.

The 70-year-old secretary, who died of a heart attack at his home here, had served just a few weeks short of four years as one of two Republican Cabinet members President Roosevelt appointed in an attempted coalition move in 1940. The other is Secretary of War Stimson.

None in Congress professed to know the President's intention, and the chief executive himself gave no hint as to a successor. There were some who believed it probable that either Forrestal would be moved up immediately or another Democrat named. Others expressed belief that Mr. Roosevelt would seek to fill the spot with another Republican in order to continue the policy he began with the appointment of Stimson and Knox.

The lists were delivered before the error was discovered and retailers have been urged to make the necessary correction.

OSLO AIRPLANE PLANT BOMBED; REICH POUNDED

By GLADWIN HILL
London, April 29 (AP)—RAF Lancasters, hopping the North sea to Norway, bombed an airplane plant at Oslo last night, and the Germans declared daylight formations were invading north central Germany and the Berlin area this morning.

The continuing daylight raids opened the third straight week of an invasion-eve air offensive that has drubbed Europe with more than 70,000 tons of explosives.

At noon the German radio said Allied formations "in the Berlin area are flying toward western and northwestern Germany"—indicating they had turned about. The broadcast, with no reports of bombings or combats, might have been a fictitious report to impress the German public with the effectiveness of their defenses.

All Planes Return
RAF Mosquitos ran a diversionary feint to the battered north sea port of Hamburg last night while the Lancaster formations, in a sudden shift of blows on Nazi air strength, struck the Kjelner airplane factory 11 miles northeast of Oslo in a 1,500-mile round-trip. All the planes returned.

The RAF said "the target was clearly identified and first reports indicate the bombing was well concentrated."

The Lancaster force probably was one of the small, specialized night precision groups which have been hitting a number of key German installations in France recently.

The Kjelner factory, repairing German fighter and troop-carrying planes, was bombed in daylight by U.S. Liberators last Nov. 18 in the Eighth air force's third and last raid into Norway. At that time the installation was described as the Nazis' principal maintenance and repair base in Norway.

Triple Strike
Three waves of Flying Fortresses and Liberators, staging the first triple-header strike of the U.S. Eighth air force, hammered French objectives Friday during a day of 2,800 sorties from Britain in the grinding campaign.

Yesterday's attacks cost the U.S. strategic air forces four bombers and three fighters; and poured some 4,800 tons of bombs on prime targets.

Scoutcraft demonstrations on various phases of scouting will be given by each troop during an intermission. Each troop will decide what type of demonstration it wishes to give and will provide its own material. A prize based on performance will be given for the best demonstration.

Teams of six scouts from each troop will take part in a signaling contest, with each team consisting of two to send, two to receive and two to be runners, it was stated. One runner will carry the message from judges to signallers while the other runner will take the message from the receivers to the judges. The winning team will be the first to hand over a correct message to the judges. Separate contests will be held for Morse and semaphore signallings with scouts supplying their own equipment.

Teams of two men from each troop many take part in a first aid contest, with each team to be given a first aid problem with one scout performing the work and the other being the person supposed to be injured. Scouts must supply their own equipment. Judging will be on speed and quality of work. Each troop may enter four contestants in a scout pace contest in which the scout paces the mile in the nearest time to 12 minutes will be the victor. Up to three entrants per troop will be allowed for a contest on judging distance, weight, and number. Materials for the judging contest will be supplied by the committee.

Deputy Tax Collectors will be in Gettysburg, starting May 1st, 1944 to collect all outstanding taxes remaining on Harry H. Thomas' books (Tax Duplicates) for the years 1934 to 1941 inclusive. In that article Mr. Hoffman is quoted as saying "And we will seek Harry's cooperation to collect the back taxes." Mr. Thomas is going to give Council cooperation to collect the back taxes. Mr. Hoffman also pointed out, although the bond had been released, that action on the part of Council did not release the Taxable. He is absolutely correct.
"When a tax collector has heretofore or shall hereafter be exonerated from collection of certain taxes, such action by the taxing boards shall not in any way have the effect of discharging or limiting the liability of the taxable, but all methods of enforcing collections of taxes shall continue as though no exception had been made."
Again quoting from Mr. Hoffman's talk, "But let the chips fall where they may, the collection of taxes will cause trouble for some townspeople, but it must be done."
If you have receipts, have them ready so the Deputy Collector can give you the proper credit.
PLEASE NOTE. A collector will sit in Mr. Thomas' Office in the Masonic Building, Center Square, Monday and Tuesday, May 1st and 2nd, to give those an opportunity who wish to pay without added cost.

NO SLACKENING OF WAR EFFORT POSSIBLE YET

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

This represents one of the most trying and dangerous moments of the war for our home front, which not only provides Uncle Sam's fighting forces but equips them with all the sinews of war.

It's trying because of the terrible strain of waiting for D-day—of waiting for word that our boys finally have battled their way up the beaches of western Europe and established secure positions.

It's dangerous because we know (perhaps unfortunately) that Hitler's ultimate defeat is certain and that the great invasion represents the coup de grace. That knowledge might easily cause us to slacken in our war effort—something which mustn't happen at this crucial juncture.

Rush Must Go On

Any slowing up means unnecessary protraction of the conflict. It means additional bloodshed and suffering.

True, in some few categories we have reached a point of production where there can be tapering off. But the day and night rush to provide the mountains of other material for our men must go on.

Take just one item to illustrate—aviation gasoline. Here are involved not only the production and the various operations necessary to land it on the fighting fronts, but conservation of gas by the home front. The black market operator in gasoline is a traitor to his country.

Pre-Invasion Assault

A year ago the German controlled radio Paris broadcast this: "Britain may soon have to limit her air activity since large-scale raids demand enormous fuel supplies."

Well, the American and British air fleets have raised a lot of hell with Germany since then—but radio Paris was right about the amount of gas required. There has been a steadily increasing hurricane of bombing during the last year until we finally reached the pre-invasion assault which began fifteen days ago.

In the first fortnight of this invasion onslaught Allied planes unleashed 65,000 tons of explosives on Europe. In 24 hours of Wednesday and Thursday this week, some 5,000 Allied warplanes unloaded 12,000 tons of bombs.

Huge Gas Requirements

We aren't told the type of all the planes used, but included in the 5,000 were 1,500 heavy American bombers. Do you know how much gasoline the largest machines use? Well, we can't do more than give rough estimates, but some of the big fellows burn 200 gallons an hour at average speed, and since that is 200 miles and upward, their gas consumption is in the neighborhood of a gallon per mile.

The heaviest recently have been making round trips of close to 2,000 miles. So if we guess that our 1,500 bombers on Thursday had a round trip of 1,500 miles, they probably consumed a minimum of 8,250,000 gallons of gas.

Thus there is an Amazonian flow of gasoline through the engines of the thousands of airplanes which are tearing into the enemy in preparation for the kill. And it can be said that all the oil and gasoline which our home front has given up to rationing in the war effort has been absorbed by our fighting forces. This shows how necessary conservation has been. It would be a sad day if we ran short of gasoline on the fighting fronts.

NAZI UNEASY OVER "D" DAY FOR INVASION

London, April 29 (AP)—The Germans announced today their anti-invasion command was ready to go into action and simultaneously Nazi occupation authorities in Denmark suspended telephone communication between Copenhagen and Stockholm for the second time in a week.

A Berlin broadcast gave no details concerning the Nazi anti-invasion command, but the Russian news agency Tass quoted Stockholm sources as saying rumors persisted in the German capital that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has replaced 70-year-old Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rundstedt as commander of Hitler's so-called west wall.

Away from a welter of fable and fancy dealing with when, where and the strength with which the Allies will attack, there were these overnight developments:

Ike Asks "More"

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, making a quick tour of air fields in England from which the Allied pre-invasion blows are being delivered, told fliers that "as much as you have done in the past, more is going to be required of you."

Marshal Petain, in a broadcast from Vichy, urged Frenchmen to "keep a loyal and correct attitude to the occupation troops."

Stockholm advised said not even official calls were being accepted this morning as the German occupying forces in Denmark suspended telephone communications between Stockholm and Copenhagen for the second time in a week.

Danes who reached Sweden after the Nazis isolated Denmark Monday at the beginning of a campaign to stamp out underground activities were quoted by the newspaper Dagens Nyheter as saying 40,000 Danes were armed and ready to help Allied invasion forces.

A Swedish Army strategist fixed the probable strength of British-American assault forces at 200 divisions against a German land force of about 40 divisions.

FULL MILITARY HONORS MONDAY FOR FRANK KNOX

By HAMILTON W. FARON

Washington, April 29 (AP)—"Well done, Frank Knox."

Those words, spoken by Admiral Ernest J. King, Navy commander in chief, stand today as an epitaph for Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox who died yesterday from recurrent heart attacks.

In the cold, terse language of Naval communications, they are the highest tribute that can be paid a Navy man.

King paid the tribute shortly after word of the Secretary's death yesterday afternoon was flashed by radio to all Naval vessels and shore stations throughout the world by James V. Forrestal, under-secretary, who automatically became acting Secretary of the Navy.

Then King added: "We dedicate ourselves, one and all, to what would surely have been his last order—carry on."

Military Honors

The death of the 70-year-old newspaper publisher who became Secretary of the Navy in July, 1940, while German forces were sweeping through Europe, came after six days illness—an illness that was not considered serious until yesterday.

Knox always was a fighting man. He recruited a group of 15 men to accompany him in enlisting in the Michigan militia for the Spanish-American war. Later he served in the famed "rough riders" under Lt. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and as a private, took part in the charge of San Juan Hill.

In the first World War he enlisted as a private and advanced to the rank of major at the war's end. He later was commissioned a lieutenant colonel and subsequently promoted to colonel in the Army reserves.

Urged Giant Navy

Recently, recalling his service in those wars, he remarked to friends: "This is the first war I didn't enter as a buck private."

As a newspaperman he carried his fighting ability into the editorial field and was one of the earliest proponents of a giant Navy—a fleet large enough to fight in both the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans.

He saw that aim accomplished as Secretary of the Navy.

One of the most widely traveled members of the cabinet, he insisted upon seeing for himself how the war was progressing on all fronts. He went to Pearl Harbor immediately after the Japanese sneak attack on December 7, 1941. He visited North Africa, Italy, England, the South American bases, the South Pacific—where he was on Espiritu Santo during a Japanese bombing raid.

Through it all he remained at heart a newspaperman, and at his twice-a-week press conferences, delighted in describing his statements as "hot copy" or merely routine news.

Boom Forrestal For Knox Post

Washington, April 29 (AP)—Strong Congressional backing developed today for the appointment of James V. Forrestal, 52-year-old Undersecretary of the Navy, to the Cabinet post made vacant yesterday by the death of Secretary Frank Knox.

The 70-year-old secretary, who died of a heart attack at his home here, had served just a few weeks short of four years as one of two Republican Cabinet members President Roosevelt appointed in an attempted coalition move in 1940. The other is Secretary of War Stimson.

None in Congress professed to know the President's intention, and the chief executive himself gave no hint as to a successor. There were some who believed it probable that either Forrestal would be moved up immediately or another Democrat named. Others expressed belief that Mr. Roosevelt would seek to fill the spot with another Republican in order to continue the policy he began with the appointment of Stimson and Knox.

Seniors Repeat Play Before 500 Friday

An audience of more than 500 attended the final presentation of the annual senior play, "The House Without a Key" Friday night at the Gettysburg high school auditorium.

Approximately 800 saw the Charlie Chan mystery play during the two nights' presentations, Thursday and Friday. All of the members of Thursday night's cast with the exception of three took part in Friday's show.

The new players Friday were Violet Rosensteel as "Kanaaki"; Mary Clare Myers as "Madame Maynard"; and John Horner as "Kaohila." Excellent performances were turned in by both the new and old players Friday.

Make Correction In Meat Point Value

Meat retailers were asked by the OPA today to make a correction in the meats-fats consumer point value table for May effective April 30.

The lists were delivered before the error was discovered and retailers have been urged to make the necessary correction.

OSLO AIRPLANE PLANT BOMBED; REICH POUNDED

By GLADWIN HILL
London, April 29 (AP)—RAF Lancasters, hopping the North sea to Norway, bombed an airplane plant at Oslo last night, and the Germans declared daylight formations were invading north central Germany and the Berlin area this morning.

The continuing daylight raids opened the third straight week of an invasion-eve air offensive that has drubbed Europe with more than 70,000 tons of explosives.

At noon the German radio said Allied formations "in the Berlin area are flying toward western and northwestern Germany"—indicating they had turned about. The broadcast, with no reports of bombings or combats, might have been a fictitious report to impress the German public with the effectiveness of their defenses.

All Planes Return

RAF Mosquitos ran a diversionary feint to the battered north sea port of Hamburg last night while the Lancaster formations, in a sudden shift of blows on Nazi air strength, struck the Kjeller airplane factory 11 miles northeast of Oslo in a 1,500-mile round-trip. All the planes returned.

The RAF said "the target was clearly identified and first reports indicate the bombing was well concentrated."

The Lancaster force probably was one of the small, specialized night precision groups which have been hitting a number of key German installations in France recently.

The Kjeller factory, repairing German fighter and troop-carrying planes, was bombed in daylight by U.S. Liberators last Nov. 18 in the Eighth air force's third and last raid into Norway. At that time the installation was described as the Nazis' principal maintenance and repair base in Norway.

Triple Strike

Three waves of Flying Fortresses and Liberators, staging the first triple-header strike of the U.S. Eighth air force, hammered French objectives Friday during a day of 2,800 sorties from Britain in the grinding campaign.

Yesterday's attacks cost the U.S. strategic air forces four bombers and three fighters, and poured some 4,800 tons of bombs on prime targets.

Scoutcraft demonstrations on various phases of scouting will be given by each troop during an intermission. Each troop will decide what type of demonstration it wishes to give and will provide its own material. A prize based on performance will be given for the best demonstration.

Teams of six scouts from each troop will take part in a signaling contest, with each team consisting of two to send, two to receive and two to be runners, it was stated. One runner will carry the message from judges to signaller while the other runner will take the message from the receivers to the judges. The winning team will be the first to hand over a correct message to the judges. Separate contests will be held for Morse and semaphore signalling with scouts supplying their own equipment.

Teams of two men from each troop many take part in a first aid contest, with each team to be given a first aid problem with one scout performing the work and the other being the person supposed to be injured. TAX PAYERS OF GETTYSBURG

Deputy Tax Collectors will be in Gettysburg, starting May 1st, 1944 to collect all outstanding taxes remaining on Harry H. Thomas' books (Tax Duplicates) for the years 1934 to 1941 inclusive. No doubt you have all read the allegations and demands appearing in a report on the Monthly meeting of the Gettysburg Borough Council that appeared in the Gettysburg Times of February 8th, 1944.

In that article Mr. Hoffman is quoted as saying "And we will seek Harry's cooperation to collect the back taxes." Mr. Thomas is going to give Council 100% cooperation. . . . Mr. Hoffman also pointed out, although the board had been released, that action on the part of Council did not release the Taxable. He is absolutely correct.

"When a tax collector has heretofore or shall hereafter be exonerated from collection of certain taxes, such action by the taxing boards shall not in any way have the effect of discharging or limiting the liability of the taxable, but all methods of enforcing collections of taxes shall continue as though no exception had been made."

Again quoting from Mr. Hoffman's talk, "But let the chips fall where they may, the collection of taxes will cause trouble for some townspeople, but it must be done."

If you have receipts, have them ready so the Deputy Collector can give you the proper credit.

PLEASE NOTE. A collector will sit in Mr. Thomas' Office in the Masonic Building, Center Square, Monday and Tuesday, May 1st and 2nd, to give those an opportunity who wish to pay without added cost.

MAROONS BEAT CARLISLE HIGH TRACKMEN 74-42

In their final tuneup prior to the South Penn. conference meet next Friday night at Waynesboro, the Gettysburg high school track team swamped Carlisle high in a dual meet Friday afternoon at Carlisle 74-42.

Ten first places fell to the Maroons, Howard winning the 220-yard dash and the high jump to be the only double-winner of the meet.

The most spectacular event was the 100-yard dash with Dorsey nosing out Reese of Carlisle. In the 220-yard event Dorsey faltered at the end to allow Howard to win in his fastest time to date.

Coach Mel Dry was forced to switch his starting plans when Heatwole became ill and was forced out of the 220. Sperry replaced him after being yanked from the 110-yard low hurdles. Howard was taken out of the high jump to run the 220.

The Maroons did not come up to their performance of a week ago in the broad jump, javelin and shot put. While the team improved as a whole it will take considerable work for the squad next week to improve enough to be a serious threat in winning the conference championship.

Montgomery Beats Joey Peralta Again

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—From an artistic standpoint the third meeting of Bob Montgomery and Joey Peralta was something less than a howling success, but Promoter Jack Kearns was a rather contented fellow today, nevertheless.

Nearly 8,000 customers—a capacity crowd—came out to the ancient coliseum last night and planked down $23,590 to watch Montgomery, New York-recognized titlist, waltz to a 10 round decision, his third over the Tamaqua, Pa., battler.

The scrap was the initial promotional venture here for Kearns, who guided Jack Dempsey to the world's heavyweight championship.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, April 29 (AP)—The Dodgers have figured in four of the last six National league no-hit games and only on the winning side once. . . Tommy (Saint Thomas) Reed, the Harlem heavyweight who fights Gus Do-razio at St. Nick's Monday, always has a violinist play soothing music in his dressing room instead of a manager trying to talk him into a fighting mood. . . Ernie Quigley, the former national league ump, is being boomed as post-war athletic director at Kansas university. Brutus Hamilton, California track coach, now is second choice. . . Lou Little hints that if the football rules committee doesn't do something about out-of-bounds kickoffs, coaches may play under "gentlemen's agreements" on the rules next fall.

So Hugh went out and made himself regular third sacker."

BROWNS SEEK MAJOR LEAGUE WIN RECORD

By JACK HAND
The Associated Press
It's up to the Chicago White Sox today to stop the St. Louis Browns' bid for a new modern big league record of ten consecutive games won at the start of a season.

Since opening day, manager Luke Sewell has been getting a superior grade of pitching in nine successive wins with seven complete games credited to his Browns staff. Only Cincinnati, with seven finishers in eight starters, can top that mark.

Jack Kramer, who turned back the Sox with four hits yesterday in the Browns' 3-1 victory, had to be relieved on opening day after pitching 8 2-3 innings. Last Sunday Tex Shirley was removed for a pinch-hitter after seven frames.

Reds Going Good
Bill McKechnie's Cincinnati hurlers have had relief only once, and that wasn't the pitcher's fault. Cuban Tom De La Cruz had allowed only four hits in eight innings but was lifted for a pinch-hitter to give the Red's bullpen its only action.

Ed Heusser is Cincinnati's latest addition to the "nine-inning pitchers" club. He joined yesterday by sprinkling seven Pittsburgh hits along the route in a 2-0 triumph. Bucky Walters and Elmer Riddle each have two complete games.

Rookie Bill Voiselle of the New York Giants failed to go all the way for the first time yesterday but got credit for his third victory as the Giants topped Brooklyn, 6-4. When Voiselle weakened, Harry Feldman stepped to the hill with two on and nobody out and retired the side on five pitched balls. Homers by Pitcher Les Webber and Howie Schultz of the Dodgers were included in the losers' 12-hit total.

Taking inspiration from Jim Tobin's heroic no-hitter, Nate Andrews took charge of the Phillies in tossing the Boston Braves to a 2-1 edge in 11 innings. Andrews had a shut-out, ruined in the ninth on Ford Mullen's single, but came up with his first decision in the second overtime when Connie Ryan singled, moved up on two sacrifices and scored on Butch Nieman's fly.

16-Inning Tilt
While the Browns were stealing the big type away from the rest of the American league, Philadelphia and Boston were playing the year's longest game, a 16-inning affair, won by the A's, 7-5. Woody Wheaton went hitless in seven at bats until he drove home the decisive score with a single. Frankie Hayes bashed two homers to assume the individual lead with a total of three.

Mel Harder is within two victories of his goal of 200 major league wins after allowing 10 Detroit hits in a 2-1 Cleveland victory.

New York and Washington in the American, and St. Louis and Chicago in the National were not scheduled.

STEUBER WILL TAKE PART IN DRAKE RELAYS

By L. E. SKELLEY
Des Moines, Ia., April 29 (AP)—An amateur athletic union suspension threat hung over Drake Relays athletes today as a result of a decision to permit former professional football player Bob Steuber to participate in the 35th annual games.

The Iowa Pre-Flight ace, storm-center of an order by Dan Ferris executive secretary of the AAU, was listed for action only in the shot-put and discus. His coach Lt. John Morris withdrew the former Chicago Bears' pro football player from track events because of a leg muscle injury suffered during the indoor season.

The decision to defy the AAU threat that all athletes who competed against Steuber would automatically professionalize themselves came late last night at a meeting of relay officials, state AAU officers and coaches.

Coaches Act First
The coaches were first to act. They unanimously voted to permit Steuber, onetime Missouri university athlete, to compete and their action promptly was accepted by the relays committee, composed of Des Moines business and sports leaders.

Lt. Comdr. Harvey Harman, athletic officer at the Pre-Flight school, thanked the coaches for their decision.

"This business (track) is a definite part of our program," he said. "Our boys are graded on how they compete and its not a question of winning but of getting into competition. Our job is to see that they compete."

PICK MICHIGAN TO TOP TEAMS IN PENN MEET

By TED MEIER
Philadelphia, April 29 (AP)—The University of Michigan Big Ten track champions and Bill Hulse, America's fastest outdoor miler, are expected to hold the limelight at the closing session of the two-day Penn Relays today.

The Wolverines, forced to share major honors with Dartmouth and New York university in the first day's competition yesterday, are favored to win the mile, two-mile and four-mile relay titles and become the first team to win four relay championships since Pitt turned the trick in 1939. That year the Panthers won the 400, 800, mile and sprint medley.

Hulse, who was clocked in a 4:06 mile in finishing second to Gundar Haegg at Berea, O., last July 31, will try to set a new National record for the three-quarters mile.

Although the track was heavy yesterday, many coaches expressed the opinion the Franklin field cinders would be dried out in time to give Hulse an excellent underfooting. The present outdoor record for the three-quarters mile is 2:58.7, made in 1940 by Paul Moore at Palo Alto, Calif.

Wolverines Shine
Michigan, which won the two-mile and sprint medley titles last year in addition to finishing second in the mile and four-mile, made a show of the distance medley yesterday.

The Ann Arbor quartet of Willis Glas, Bob Ufer and Ross and Bob Hume breeched home 100 yards ahead of Dartmouth in 10:20.1. Bob Hume clicked for a 4:23.3 anchor mile in contract to a 4:31 effort by Don Burnham, Dartmouth champion indoor miler.

Burnham apparently was conserving his strength for the sprint medley in which he sparked the Hanover N. H., Indians to an exciting triumph over Columbia and Army with a 1:55.2 anchor half-mile. Army was leading until the last 100 yards when Burnham and Joe Hall, of Columbia, put on a stretch kick to pass the Army anchor man, Albion Knight. Dartmouth's winning time was 3:31.9.

NYU Wins Quarter
Anchored by its indoor sprint champion Ed Conwell, New York university retained its quarter-mile title in 42.5 seconds.

Shotput—Norman Wasser, NYU, 48 ft. 1 1/4 inches. Discus—Lt. (Jr) Hugh Cannon, Staten Island (NY) Naval base, 162 ft. 4 in. Prep school quarter mile relay—Hill school 45 seconds. ## MAROONS BEAT CARLISLE HIGH TRACKMEN 74-42

In their final tuneup prior to the South Penn conference meet next Friday night at Waynesboro, the Gettysburg high school track team swamped Carlisle high in a dual meet Friday afternoon at Carlisle 74-42.

Ten first places fell to the Maroons, Howard winning the 220-yard dash and the high jump to be the only double-winner of the meet.

The most spectacular event was the 100-yard dash with Dorsey nosing out Reese of Carlisle. In the 220-yard event Dorsey faltered at the end to allow Howard to win in his fastest time to date.

Coach Mel Dry was forced to switch his starting plans when Heatwole became ill and was forced out of the 220. Sperry replaced him after being yanked from the 110-yard low hurdles. Howard was taken out of the high jump to run the 220.

The Maroons did not come up to their performance of a week ago in the broad jump, javelin and shot put. While the team improved as a whole it will take considerable work for the squad next week to improve enough to be a serious threat in winning the conference championship.

Montgomery Beats Joey Peralta Again

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—From an artistic standpoint the third meeting of Bob Montgomery and Joey Peralta was something less than a howling success, but Promoter Jack Kearns was a rather contented fellow today, nevertheless.

Nearly 8,000 customers—a capacity crowd—came out to the ancient coliseum last night and planked down $23,590 to watch Montgomery.

New York-recognized titlist, walk to a 10 round decision, his third over the Tamaqua, Pa., battler.

The scrap was the initial promotional venture here for Kearns, who guided Jack Dempsey to the world's heavyweight championship.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, April 29 (AP)—The Dodgers have figured in four of the last six National league no-hit games and only on the winning side once. . . Tommy

(Saint Thomas) Reed, the Harlem heavyweight who fights Gus Dorazio at St. Nick's Monday, always has a violinist play soothing music in his dressing room instead of a manager trying to talk him into a fighting mood. . . Ernie Quigley, the former national league ump, is being boomed as post-war athlete director at Kansas university.

Brutus Hamilton, California track coach, now is second choice. . .

Lou Little hints that if the football rules committee doesn't do something about out-of-bounds kickoffs, coaches may play under "gentlemen's agreements" on the rules next fall.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

John Mooney, Salt Lake Telegram: "Jim Tobin's no hitter against the Dodgers was the worst whitewashing the Burns received since they tried to talk Branch

Rickey into a pay increase."

SPORTSPOURRI

Texas A. and M. has landed

Wesley Cox and Paul Campbell, star halfbacks who led Breckenridge high to the top of the Texas schooboy heap last fall. . . After the baseball season, Hal Kline,

20-year-old Cleveland southpaw, plans to have his right forefinger amputated. As a result of a burn when he was a baby, it is useless and hampers his fielding. . . Samuel Fralick, soccer coach at Chicago's Kelly high school—also a pro player and newspaper writer—has compiled what he says is the first soccer score book. . . Local scribbles say Joe McCarthy has ordered the flaming gas well on his farm plugged because it reminds him of those hated arc lights at ball parks.

A ROOKIE A DAY

Hugh Luby, Giants' third baseman—The "iron man" who would-not rust. He played 866 consecutive games, five complete seasons, at second base for Oakland, Calif.,

winding up last season by hitting .311 and earning the "player of the year" designation. . . when he reported late at the Giants' camp

this spring, he found George Hausmann holding the second base job.

So Hugh went out and made himself regular third sacker.

SERVICE DEPT.

Dee Miles, former Senators and Athletics outfielder, has decided not to play any more this season for the Bainbridge Naval station

Commodore. He wants to be sure the leg he broke last year is completely sound before he does much running. . . Lieut. Robert Y.

Dienst, son of the Beulah park race track prexy, spent a week's leave while being transferred from

Kearns, Utah, to Scotts Bluff, Neb., helping his Dad prepare for the opening of the Ohio racing season.

. . . Slogan gone wrong: Lieut.

Bob Shurilla, former Marquette U.

hurdler who entered the air corps with the motto: "Look out, Manila here comes Shurilla, is a prisoner of war in Germany after participating in 16 missions over Europe.

MORE THAN DISAPPOINTED

Washington, Apr. 29 (AP)—Members of a House Naval subcommittee that recommended outright acquisition of western hemisphere bases leased from the British served notice

today that Prime Minister Churchill's rejection of the idea was a little more than disappointing.

BROWNS SEEK MAJOR LEAGUE WIN RECORD

By JACK HAND

The Associated Press

It's up to the Chicago White Sox

today to stop the St. Louis Browns' bid for a new modern big league record of ten consecutive games won at the start of a season.

Since opening day, manager Luke

Sewell has been getting a superior grade of pitching in nine successive wins with seven complete games credited to his Brownie staff. Only Cincinnati, with seven finishers in eight starters, can top that mark.

Jack Kramer, who turned back the Sox with four hits yesterday in the Brown's 3-1 victory, had to be relieved on opening day after pitching 8 2-3 innings. Last Sunday Tex

Shirley was removed for a pinch-hitter after seven frames.

Reds Going Good

Bill McKechnie's Cincinnati hurl-ers have had relief only once, and that wasn't the pitcher's fault. Cuban Tom De La Cruz had allowed only four hits in eight innings but was lifted for a pinch-hitter to give the Red's bullpen its only action.

Ed Heusser is Cincinnati's latest addition to the "nine-inning pitchers" club. He joined yesterday by sprinkling seven Pittsburgh hits along the route in a 2-0 triumph.

Bucky Walters and Elmer Riddle

each have two complete games.

Rookie Bill Vosselle of the New York Giants failed to go all the way for the first time yesterday but got credit for his third victory as the Giants topped Brooklyn, 6-4.

When Vosselle weakened, Harry

Feldman stepped to the hill with two on and nobody out and retired the side on five pitched balls. Homers

by Pitcher Les Webber and Howie

Schultz of the Dodgers were included in the losers' 12-hit total.

Taking inspiration from Jim Tobin's heroic no-hitter, Nate Andrews took charge of the Phillies in tossing the Boston Braves to a 2-1 edge in 11 innings. Andrews had a shut-

Just Folks

INEVITABLE.
All must be brave at times!
Here, soon or late.
Till tomorrow's solemn chimes
For humble or great.

None, whether high or low,
Pleasure's sole heir!
Favored through life to go,
Laughing at care.

Soon or late, one and all,
Come to the cross.
See the dark shadows fall;
Gain become loss.

Life blends its weal and woe
Down to the grave.
One and all here must know
How to be brave.

Today's Talk

THIS GLOBE OF OURS

A friend at Christmastime presented me with a Globe of the world. It stands upon a desk a few inches from my typewriter. On the other side of my writing-table stands my radio. Each is a part of my wonder equipment.

Not until you have a Globe before you to study the happenings of the world do you fit a proper picture of what is going on firmly in your mind. When I listen to the news broadcasts, or read my newspaper, I consult this interesting Globe. I turn it to the location being told or written about. Then again I am informing myself of this great world as I have never been informed before.

It's a big world in which we live, and a beautiful one, too. You speculate upon the arrangement of the various races who inhabit this great Globe. You think upon the wisdom of the Creator, who divided up the many races and put them where they are today. He must have had a good reason for so doing. I believe that this Creator meant that we should not interfere with His plans. I believe that He knew what He was about. Our interference with His arrangements has confused so many who were happy as they were.

Is it not strange that the most civilized, so called, of these countries that inhabit this Globe are the ones who are now fighting this cruel war? Where are the civilizations that far surpassed our own gone to? War buried them long ago! Can we not learn from the study of history? Study that Globe of yours, and get out your history and read. Think as you read.

Your Globe is a poem—but it is all out of harmony now. In a small area on this Globe, known as Palestine, a child was cradled in a manger, grew to manhood, and formulated a plan by which all the world might live in peace and have good-will toward all men. He was put to death—but His plan lives! And only through that plan that He set forth can this Globe be made happy, and its people inherit perpetual peace.

Plan Simplification Of Corporate Taxes

Washington, April 29 (AP)—Proud of its bill to simplify individual income tax procedures, the house ways and means committee announced Friday it would try to do the same with corporation tax laws.

"That's the next big thing we ought to get to," said Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.).

He was seconded immediately by Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.) ranking ways and means Republican, thus giving corporation tax simplification the same bi-partisan incentive that brought speedy action on the individual returns.

Riding with Russell

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

The modern way of doing with your boots on is to keep pressing one of them on the accelerator.

When a coil burns out the temptation is to put in a new one, and let it go at that, but unless an effort is made to correct the conditions which caused the original coil failure there's a good chance that subsequent coils will go bad too. Coil failure usually is due either to overheating from excessively high voltage or to high resistance in the high tension circuit. Thus we see that a defective voltage regulator can cause coil failure; also a burned rotor segment, spark plugs that are gapped too wide or a defective radio suppressor. Anything that forces the coil to develop abnormal voltage in order to overcome the excessive resistance is certain to induce a breaking down of its secondary wiring insulation.

The Motor Primer

Motorists who have gained a general knowledge of the car usually begin to wonder what enables various parts to keep in line. Specifically, wonder why it is that when the car is traveling downhill with throttle closed the fuel pump doesn't overfeed the carburetor and cause excessive loss of gasoline. Here is where we need to go deeper into the subject and picture the carburetor's needle valve as closing off the supply when not needed. This automatically causes pressure in the line to close the inlet valve of the pump and hold the diaphragm down against its own spring pressure. This allows the rocker arm of the pump to move but without doing any work until such time as the carburetor again has need for fuel.

Any suspicion that the fuel pump isn't working well should be followed by disconnecting the line to the carburetor and noting if fuel comes out freely when the engine is cranked. By placing your finger over the end of the pipe you can gain a fair idea of the pump's pressure.

One of the current motor problems concerns leaky intake manifolds, due to corrosion near the point where the manifold bolts to the carburetor. If a new manifold cannot be obtained patching usually is possible by installing an insert at the point of leakage. Tip-off to manifold trouble is failure to get a good idling mixture.

Mechanic Joe Speaking
"I have never been able to figure out why it is that whenever oil mileage goes down suddenly most motorists immediately think in terms of a ring job. Most engines will go some 30,000 miles with the original rings before showing signs of ring and cylinder wear, unless abused, but at almost any mileage the sight of a low reading on the oil dip stick is immediate cause for concern about the cylinders. It remains a mystery why we don't start with such simple things as possibility of using the wrong grade of oil, or cheap oil, or leakage, or overheating, or loose gaskets. Just having a few spark plugs loose, or bad gaskets around them, will cause high oil consumption by encouraging oil to suck up into the cylinders. At this time of year crankcases that are half filled with diluent are apt to burn off their contents with alarming rapidity yet the situation is no suggestion of 'ring trouble'."

The natural tendency to jump to conclusions accounted for a reader of these chats about our cars deciding that lack of smoothness in his car was due to too much play or slack in the propeller shaft. He immediately ordered service on the universal joints, later to discover that there was nothing wrong at all with the car's rear. What seemed to be slack was, in reality, lack of smoothness in the engine's operation. A rear end job turned out to be a false alarm. One new spark plug solved the whole thing.

Adjust For Variety
Motorists who are puzzled because of frequent stalling will want to give a little thought to the fact that an engine's idling speed must be fast enough to meet varying conditions. If idling is set when the engine is well warmed up it may not be fast enough for cold operation. There is no fast idle device on the carburetor. Even where there is provision for fast idling when the engine is cold there may not be sufficiently fast idling for moderate engine temperature. Thus after making an adjustment when the engine is warm, be sure to increase the idling speed if the engine tends to stall at lower temperatures. Also if the engine stalls when you apply the brakes abruptly (an emergency is the only justification for this, too) the idling speed should be increased a little, for stalling under certain conditions can be a source of danger to itself.

Here's an idea that ought to be useful for those who suspect that sudden lowered oil mileage is due to a leaky diaphragm in the vacuum pump of the fuel pump. If this diaphragm is in bad shape oil may be sucked into the intake manifold from the crankcase. The test for such leakage is simple enough. Just disconnect the line between the pump and the manifold and run the engine. If the diaphragm is leaking oil will spray out on a piece of paper held in front of the pump opening.

Do A Real Job

If you are spending a few hours going over the car's accessories be sure to do a real job of cleaning the oil-bath type of air cleaner. It isn't enough to dunk the filtering element in a cleansing agent. You will also want to empty out the old oil, which will have picked up considerable dirt, and wipe out the filter shell or container. Equally as important as complete cleaning of this protective device is the matter of putting in just the right amount of oil of the right grade for the season of year. Just what's what will be mentioned in the instruction book. Object of keeping the level at the recommended point is to enjoy maximum filtration but without forcing the engine to suck in more gasoline if the air supply is cut down by a too high oil level in the filter.

It may seem to be just a detail but when you go to add wafers to the battery cells be sure to note if each cell requires the same amount. Unequal thirst on the part of cells indicates that there is trouble. Loose fitting vent plugs allow electrolyte to slop around and leak out. There may be loss through seepage through cracks in the sealing compound. Serious loss can occur if one of the battery containers or jars is broken. Behind such troubles one usually finds careless installation or abusive handling.

It is a great obstacle of happiness to expect too much.—Fontenelle

Just Folks

INEVITABLE

All must be brave at times!
Here, soon or late.
Till tomorrow's solemn chimes
For humble or great.None, whether high or low,
Pleasure's sole heir;
Favored through life to go,
Laughing at care.Soon or late, one and all,
Come to the cross,
See the dark shadows fall;
Gain become loss.Life blends its weat and woe
Down to the grave.
One and all here must know
How to be brave.

Today's Talk

THIS GLOBE OF OURS

A friend at Christmastime presented me with a Globe of the world. It stands upon my desk a few inches from my typewriter. On the other side of my writing-table stands my radio. Each is a part of my wonder equipment.

Not until you have a Globe before you to study the happenings of the world do you fit a proper picture of what is going on firmly in your mind. When I listen to the news broadcasts, or read my newspaper, I consult this interesting Globe. I turn it to the location being told or written about. Then again I am informing myself of this great world as I have never been informed before.

It's a big world in which we live, and a beautiful one, too. You speculate upon the arrangement of the various races who inhabit this great Globe. You think upon the wisdom of the Creator, who divided up the many races and put them where they are today. He must have had a good reason for so doing. I believe that this Creator meant that we should not interfere with His plans. I believe that He knew what He was about. Our interference with His arrangements has confused so many who were happy as they were.

Is it not strange that the most civilized, so called, of these countries that inhabit this Globe are the ones who are now fighting this cruel war? Where are the civilizations that far surpassed our own? Can we not learn from the study of history? Study that Globe of yours, and get out your history and read. Think as you read.

Your Globe is a poem—but it is all out of harmony now. In a small area on this Globe, known as Palestine, a child was cradled in a manger, grew to manhood, and formulated a plan by which all the world might live in peace and have good-will toward all men. He was put to death—but His plan lives! And only through that plan that He set forth can this Globe be made happy, and its people inherit perpetual peace.

Plan Simplification
Of Corporate Taxes

Washington, April 29 (AP)—Proud of its bill to simplify individual income tax procedures, the house ways and means committee announced Friday it would try to do the same with corporation tax laws.

"That's the next big thing we ought to get to," said Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.).

He was seconded immediately by Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.) ranking ways and means Republican, thus giving corporation tax simplification the same bi-partisan incentive that brought speedy action on the individual returns.

LADY IN A WHIRL

By Esther Valck-Georgins

YESTERDAY: Pretty twenty-four-year-old Zelda Germaine, orphan oil heiress, accepts the attentions of self-styled Count Aristide Varanisi despite the intuitive suspicions of Cora, the girl's middle-aged servant and companion. When Zelda says the count is going to take her to The Beanstalk, a night club of sinister repute, Cora insists upon accompanying the young folks.

Chapter 2

Cora's appearance was misleading. She looked mild and studious—and was exactly the opposite. This was fortunate, because she was one of those people whose excitement follows around like a faithful hound. If she got on a train it was likely to be derailed. If she boarded an elevator it would very likely stall between the fifth and sixth floors. Such things, and more, had happened to her, and when Zelda groaned at the prospect of taking her to The Beanstalk, it was because she sensed catastrophe.

Cora, however, was all ready and waiting when the shifty elegant Count Varanisi arrived. As he bent his shining dark head over Zelda's hand it was difficult to see just why Cora should dislike and mistrust him so intensely. Tall, broad shouldered, his blue eyes fringed by long dark lashes, he was extremely handsome.

But dislike him she did, and as he kissed Zelda's hand, Cora's face was a cold mask of disgust.

"You are so beautiful," said the count, looking deep into Zelda's eyes. "I am almost afraid to take you out. Surely someone will knock me on the head and kidnap you!"

"Don't worry. Cora is coming along. She'll take care of me," Zelda laughed.

"I am honored indeed!" exclaimed the nobleman. "Two such lovely ladies are more than I deserve."

Cora looked down her nose while he said, "Miss Pettit, I am delighted."

Certainly the Beanstalk seemed innocent enough. There was a subdued orchestra playing for a few dancers. The tables were occupied by well dressed people who ate and drank quietly. The decorations were in fairly good taste. At the left of the entrance a broad stairway led to an upper floor.

The waiter escorted the count, and his party to a table near the stairs. The count did not like the location and protested.

"It is the only table," the waiter told him.

"Maybe there's one upstairs," Cora suggested.

"No madam. There are no empty tables upstairs," the waiter assured her hastily.

peets, nad hopes for, the worst." As they sat down, Cora surveyed the place over her glasses, looking for the ex-convict. Not finding him, she turned her attention to the menu, always a matter of interest to her.

"I think it's better here anyway,"

Whistles blew, tables crashed, diners caught up their wraps and dashed wildly here and there. The waiters disappeared and the lights went out. The last thing Cora saw, before the place was plunged in darkness, were the police entering the door and the count leaping up the stairs like a mountain goat.

Teachers from this place met with those of Huntington, Latimore and Tyrone townships at the local fire hall Friday evening. After the business session, a banquet and social period followed.

Annual Charter Night was observed by the local Lions club at the fire hall Wednesday evening where a banquet, prepared by the Women's Auxiliary of the local fire company, was served to members and their wives. Honor was paid to those who participated in the recent Lions club play, "Angel Brats," members of the cast being present.

LADY IN A WHIRL

By Esther Valck Georgins

YESTERDAY: Pretty twenty-four-year-old Zelda Germaine, orphan oil heiress, accepts the attention of self-styled Count Aristide Varanisi despite the intuitive suspicions of Cora, the girl's middle-aged servant and companion. When Zelda says the count is going to take her to The Beanstalk, a night club of sinister repute, Cora insists upon accompanying the young folks.

Chapter 2

Cora's appearance was misleading.
She looked mild and studious—and was exactly the opposite. This was fortunate, because she was one of those people whom excitement follows around like a faithful hound.
If she got on a train it was likely to be derailed, if she boarded an elevator it would very likely stall between the fifth and sixth floors.
Such things, and more, had happened to her, and when Zelda groaned at the prospect of taking her to The Beanstalk, it was because she scented catastrophe.

Cora, however, was all ready and waiting when the slimy elegant Count Varanisi arrived. As he bent his shining dark head over Zelda's hand it was difficult to see just why Cora should dislike and distrust him so intensely. Tall, broad shouldered, his blue eyes fringed by long dark lashes, he was extremely handsome.

But dislike him she did, and as he kissed Zelda's hand, Cora's face was a cold mask of disgust.

"You are so beautiful," said the count, looking deep into Zelda's eyes.
"I am almost afraid to take you out. Surely someone will knock me on the head and kidnap you!"

"Don't worry. Cora is coming along. She'll take care of me," Zelda laughed.

"I am honored indeed!" exclaimed the nobleman. "Two such lovely ladies are more than I deserve."

Cora looked down her nose while he said, "Miss Pettit. I am delighted."

Certainly the Beanstalk seemed innocent enough. There was a subdued orchestra playing for a few dancers. The tables were occupied by well dressed people who ate and drank quietly. The decorations were in fairly good taste. At the left of the entrance a broad stairway led to an upper floor.

The waiter escorted the count and his party to a table near the stairs. The count did not like the location and protested.

"It is the only table," the waiter told him.

"Maybe there's one upstairs," Cora suggested.

"No madam. There are no empty tables upstairs," the waiter assured her hastily.

peets, had hopes for, the worst."

As they sat down, Cora surveyed the place over her glasses, looking for the ex-convict. Not finding him, she turned her attention to the menu, always a matter of interest to her.

"I think it's better here anyway,"

she seconded Zelda's approval.
"We're not far from the door, so if anything happens we can get out in a hurry."

"And what could happen?" inquired the count with a smile.
"Oh, for heaven's sake—nothing!"
exclaimed Zelda. "Cora always expects, had hopes for, the worst."

They ordered drinks and after a while Zelda and the count danced.
They did not return to the table when the music stopped but went directly up the stairway. They were gone a long time and Cora became uneasy. She was not so innocent as she looked and she knew that whatever illegal activity the club was engaged in would not be in evidence to the casual diner.

She was not only uneasy, she was bored. She decided to have a shrimp cocktail and as the waiter disappeared kitchenward she noticed a tapestry that hung on the wall under the stairs. She knew very little about such things but it looked like a good one and she reached over and idly flipped up one corner. To her surprise she saw a door behind it, concealed by the hanging.

A few minutes later Zelda and the count came back downstairs and immediately began to dance. Cora watched as they circled the floor.
Anyone could see that Zelda had fallen hard for him. It made Cora miserable. Despite his courtesy, she had a feeling that one of the count's first moves, if he and Zelda married, would be to get rid of her.

It was not, however, her own welfare that worried her. She was even more worried about Zelda.

In the first place, who was this count? No one seemed to know.
And although he talked a great deal about himself, and very charmingly too, he never disclosed his origin or background.

Even his name was peculiar. His first name seemed to be Greek. His last name certainly sounded Italian.
And yet, once or twice he had intimated that he was Rumanian.

Whoever he was, Zelda seemed completely enamored.

Cora watched the pair as they stopped dancing and came toward the table. The count was holding one of Zelda's hands. Both seemed oblivious to their surroundings.

"When will you tell me, then?
Tomorrow—darling?" he was asking.
Zelda laughed breathlessly. "All right. Tomorrow," she promised.

"When are we going home, for goodness sake?" Cora demanded, unable to restrain her anger.

"Home! Why the evening has only started," protested the count.

"Maybe—but I'm nearly finished," Cora murmured.

Zelda eyed the remains of the shrimp cocktail. "Of course, if you will eat and eat—"

"Shucks! I have to do something, don't I? I never did see such a dull place. That just shows how the newspapers exaggerate things. I can't imagine this morgue ever being raised."

As though her words had been a signal, the excitement started.

Whistles blew, tables crashed, diners caught up their wraps and dashed wildly here and there. The waiters disappeared and the lights went out.
The last thing Cora saw, before the place was plunged in darkness, were the police entering the door and the count leaping up the stairs like a mountain goat.

M-G-M's "Song of Russia," starring Robert Taylor and Susan Peters, which opens Monday night at the Majestic theatre, and is a glorious romance set to stirring music against a background of modern Russia at peace and at war.

Directed by Gregory Ratoff, himself a fabulous Russian, "Song of Russia" is the story of an American symphony conductor who falls in love with a lovely Russian girl while touring Russia prior to the Nazi invasion. War breaks out while they are on their honeymoon, disrupting their peaceful dreams of a happy future. They are caught in the sweep of the initial Nazi success and remain with Russia during her darkest hour before they are convinced that as world-famous musicians their job is to keep culture alive, and they return to America.

The world has heard of MEMPHIS BELLE, the Flying Fortress which carried its crew through twenty-five missions over Germany and France. Now, through the magic of the camera, a documentary film arrives Monday at the Majestic, promising to bring the great movie-going public a thrill which comes but once in a lifetime.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY
How one war wife fought her personal battle on the home front is the basis of "Tender Comrade," Ginger Rogers' latest dramatic starring vehicle.

This romance of a typical American girl revolves around her marriage to a high school sweetheart. When their dreams are shattered by the husband's call to the armed service, the heroine gets herself a job in an aircraft plant. Robert Ryan has his first romantic part in the role of the heroine's mate. He shares featured honors with Ruth Hussey, Patricia Collinge, Kim Hunter, Jane Darwell and Richard Martin.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY
M-G-M's "Song of Russia," starring Robert Taylor and Susan Peters, which opens Monday night at the Majestic theatre, and is a glorious romance set to stirring music against a background of modern Russia at peace and at war.

Directed by Gregory Ratoff, himself a fabulous Russian, "Song of Russia" is the story of an American symphony conductor who falls in love with a lovely Russian girl while touring Russia prior to the Nazi invasion. War breaks out while they are on their honeymoon, disrupting their peaceful dreams of a happy future. They are caught in the sweep of the initial Nazi success and remain with Russia during her darkest hour before they are convinced that as world-famous musicians their job is to keep culture alive, and they return to America.

The world has heard of MEMPHIS BELLE, the Flying Fortress which carried its crew through twenty-five missions over Germany and France. Now, through the magic of the camera, a documentary film arrives Monday at the Majestic, promising to bring the great movie-going public a thrill which comes but once in a lifetime.

How one war wife fought her personal battle on the home front is the basis of "Tender Comrade," Ginger Rogers' latest dramatic starring vehicle.

This romance of a typical American girl revolves around her marriage to a high school sweetheart. When their dreams are shattered by the husband's call to the armed service, the heroine gets herself a job in an aircraft plant. Robert Ryan has his first romantic part in the role of the heroine's mate. He shares featured honors with Ruth Hussey, Patricia Collinge, Kim Hunter, Jane Darwell and Richard Martin.
